

This lovely old town is the wine capital of the island. Sleepy streets lined with fine buildings in mellow golden stone lead to the main square. Anyone seeking the authentic Mallorca need look no further.

High in the hills, a heady 570 metres altitude, with distant views of the sea, Galilea is a mountain village in the favoured Calvia region of the island. In these idyllic surroundings, there is one quality above all others and that is tranquillity.

Scott's Galilea ✧ ✧ ✧ ✧

Tucked away behind Galilea village enjoying panoramic views for many miles, a former artists colony has been transformed into a pretty hideaway. The tiny complex is on four levels with many steps.

In the same ownership as the well-known Scott's Hotel at Binissalem, it presents an opportunity to combine both properties for a two-centre holiday. While away a few days in an unbelievably scenic and peaceful part of the island before moving to the wine capital of Mallorca.

All bedrooms are non-smoking with south facing terrace, deep sprung beds, luxury linen, goose-down pillows and a DVD player with films available from a library of classics. Small lounge and bar with outside terrace. Breakfast is served on a tray on your terrace until noon each day.

Swimming pool with exercise swimjet. Sun terraces, pool bar, sauna. Occasional barbecue. There are several restaurants within two miles radius.
